I am having an issue where I am trying to create an application and a library both that share a common JAR file. I'm using Eclipse and I wanted to create an inner jar which provides the implementation for a certain API. So it should look like this Then I created the inner jar as an application and a library (I'm aware this is confusing because the jar has two packaging types). When running the program the problem occurs I included the proper inner jar in the classpath. The inner jar has no settings in the Manifest file. Any suggestions? Thank you in advance! A: If you go to Project Properties, Java Build Path, Order and Export tab, there is a field called "Order and Export" If there is no option, add your inner JAR to this field, as well as the other libraries, with the order you want to see them in the classpath. This applies to both, libraries and regular projects. Note: It would be better if there is an option. Legislation No fewer than three market researchers are predicting that by the end of this year, the United Kingdom will be moving to a "no deal" Brexit. The latest, and as it happens the third, of these projections is that the U.K. will leave the European Union with zero time to go through the necessary paperwork to put the 28 EU countries on the same footing as other third-world countries. These predictions are based on the U.K. government's own Brexit scenario planning, which The Financial Times reports will be issued later this year. The British government has not actually run an EU exit scenario, which includes a lack of a transition period, but it has given the EU ample time to work out this last hurdle. The EU Brexit negotiations lasted three years and almost all of that time was spent working on the backstop, which meant the U.K. remained in the EU's customs union. Prime Minister Theresa May's government couldn't even get the U.K. parliament to approve a version of the deal that the EU would agree to, so
